

7. Out into Web
1. Web

Images
Histor

Videos

New lodge which sing-
New oniats this

1. Shopping

2. Translate

3. Books

4. Finance

5. Scholar

6. Blogs

8. YouTube

9. Calendar

10. Photos

11. Documents

12. Sites

13. Groups

14. Reader

15.

opened this morning with an immense display of fruit and vegetables, &c., but a small attendance. Wolcott sent a nota-decorated cart. The leading feature of the exhibition is the yoke of oxen from Vermont weighing 7,000 pounds. This is the first time they have been exhibited in the state. They will go to the Danbury fair next week.

A STUBBORN RESISTANCE.

Military and Police at an Irish Eviction.

MERICK, Sept. 27.—Military and police were present to-day at the eviction of Ael Lane and family from their hold in Colonel Meadow's estate at Ardnamoa, this county. The Lanes made a stubborn resistance, and during the struggle, Mrs. Lane, with a poker, split open the skull of Inspector Riley, who was directing the work of eviction. Mrs. Lane, husband and brother were arrested. When the police threatened his place, he dared them to come on. When they needed he fought them with a club. His brother-in-law assisted him to resist the police. They were finally overcome by the police and their arms were held. They were beaten into a condition of resistance with the butt ends of a

ARK, Sept. 27.—A number of the men on the railway between Cork and Dublin which the police must traverse around the buoys at that point to buoy 5 off Sandy Hook, which the yachts must pass on the outside. The outer mark is Sandy Hook lightship, from which the yachts must pass over the same course, and then on to buoy 15 under the bluff of Fort Wadsworth.

Details of the Race.

FORT WADSWORTH, Sept. 27, 9:35 a. m.—A heavy fog hangs over the harbor. There is absolutely no wind. The sun is making a feeble attempt to penetrate the fog. From present indications there can be no race to-day.

9:40 a. m.—The Thistle lies at her old anchorage near Tompkinsville. She has her mainsail and her club topsail set. The Galatea lays on her starboard. A great crowd of small craft surround the Scotch beauty. Everything but the wind is right for the race. The Volunteer lies over near the Atlantic club house attended by many vessels. At the present moment there is a slight wind from the north. Vessels trying to get down the bay are spread eagled with every sail set.

10 a. m.—There is not enough wind to hardly move a boat. The sailing vessels which are standing down the bay are carried by the tide. The sun is just breaking through the mass of fog. Thousands line the hills here, and many gaily bedecked craft pass to get near the racers.

10:20 a. m.—There is apparently a little more wind, but it is not worth mentioning. The sailing vessels blow their fog horns in disgust at the weather. Norman Monroe's little steam yacht "Now Then" is just now opposite here going up the Narrows like a phantom. Disappointporaty chairman, and on taking the floor he addressed the convention. His remarks to the various public acts of Cleveland were received with continued applause. Reference to the president's exercise of the veto power met with prompt approval of every member. The interest of the people at large was shown by the large attendance. The conclusion of the convention was greeted with enthusiasm. The secretaries were selected and after the adoption of a resolution making the assembly responsible to the convention the convention was at 12:50 begun.

When the roll call had been completed a resolution by Mr. Dorst was adopted directing that the committee on resolutions shall be composed of one delegate from each congressional district. Also, on motion, a resolution was adopted providing that all resolutions referred to the committee on resolutions shall be without debate. At 1:45 the convention took a recess until 8 o'clock p. m.

A dispatch from the Associated Press was read here announcing that the Volunteer was ahead of the Galatea in the yacht race and likely to win. The convention was greeted with great applause and giving cheers.

Marine Disaster:

CHATHAM, Mass., Sept. 27.—The schooner J. G. Stover, New York for Boston, came ashore at North Chatham this morning. Captain der to reach the Ponsonby estates in Cork for the purpose of aiding in evictions to be executed there to-day, torn up last night. Captain Plun has arrived at Youghal to superintend the evictions, but no troops have arrived there yet.

DUBLIN, Sept. 27.—Lord Mayor Sullivan has written asking to be admitted to membership in the Mitchellstown branch.

THE SUN WILL NOT SHINE.

Clouds and Rain Still Continue at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 27.—All promises of fair weather for St. Louis to-day were founded on error. The clouds that settled over the city Sunday morning have apparently come to stay and the disagreeable drizzle, mud and moisture laden atmosphere have crushed out all hope of a parade to-day, and shortly after nine o'clock Grand Marshal General D. P. Frier, posted in all headquarters and conspicuous places an order that the grand review would be postponed until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The governors and ex-governors have reported, and this morning the following were ready to take the reviewing stand. Governor Oglesby of Illinois, Governor Rusk of Wisconsin, Governor Stoneman of California, Governor Fletcher of Missouri, Governor Crawford of Kansas, Gov. Evans of Colorado, Gen. Sanders of Nebraska, Gov. Pierrepont of West Virginia, Gov. Wm. Sprague of Rhode Island and Vice President Hannibal Hamlin. An extended programme of ment is manifested by all.

10:35 a.m.—An idea of the utter absence of wind can be formed when it has taken the big schooner Rambler half an hour to make half a mile between the forts. Nearly 30 schooners and sloops are now in the Narrows, and they are barely moving. Fort Lafayette is hardly discernible and there appears to be no prospect of the fog lifting.

FORT WADSWORTH, 11:10 a.m.—There are streaks of wind in the lower bay and a better breeze is coming out of the southward. It may possibly blow four miles now, but not more. The haze still hides the yachts at Bay Ridge.

11:21—The racers are now dimly seen near the starting line. The mist is clearing away and the wind blows from four to six miles an hour.

11:55 a.m.—The two racers are loitering about above the line. They have all plain sail and big club topsails set and are waiting for the breeze to freshen sufficiently to warrant the start. A large crowd of excursion steamers are lying near them.

12:03 p.m.—They are now manoeuvring for a start. The Thistle has mainsail, club topsail, balloon jib, jib and fore sail set. She is now standing toward Tompkinsville, while the Volunteer with mainsail, club topsail, jib and skysail is standing towards Owls Head. Both are near the line, and it is evident that a start is soon to be made. The breeze is about eight miles and comes in puffs from the south. The mist is clearing away slowly.

12:32 p.m.—The Thistle has crossed and the start is made at last. Both yachts early this morning. Captain that he left New York Sunday had thick, smoky weather and came down over shoals last evening covered vessel leaking when Pollock Rip 11 p.m. Water to gain on the pumps; was beach her to prevent sinking; about three miles north of Chatham. The vessel is free.

Citizen Train Didn't L

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—George Train did not lecture last night as announced that he would. A crowd, attracted by the advertisement assembled in front of the doors were not opened, nor explanation given. It is rumored that Captain Black and other the Anarchists thought that lecture on Sunday night different than good, and asked him. It is understood that Train's plan of a lecturing tour of the country in spite of opposi-

Thieves In a Sleeping

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Sept. 26.—A burglary at Chester Friday night reported. The thieves entered the room of J. J. E. Pollard, a merchant, taking a gold watch, keys to the store and safe at which safe was rifled and goods to the value of about $500 was taken. No clue.

